Executive Summary

The SAVE project has worked to install in-home energy monitoring in order to fulfil the requirements within SDRC 6 - Successfully install 80% of the clamp sensors within the properties of customers successfully recruited to trials, ensuring ability to retrieve data from these devices. This data consists of half-hourly total demand measurements via a current sensor attached to the incoming supply of all participating properties and additional monitoring at some properties which captures the energy use of up to three plug-top appliances; with plug locations selected to capture high energy use devices where practical.

This report provides detail of the numbers of units installed to date against the installation targets outlined in the Full Submission, installation rates throughout the installation phase and a detailed explanation of the data captured by the Project. The project has exceeded 80% of the 2,750 recruitment target required to employ a factorial trial design approach but continues work towards the higher 4,000 target.

Analysis of system data demonstrates:

- 2,552 households with equipment installed as of 19/06/2015 which represents 93% of the 2,750 required installations.
- 1,113 (44%) installations have smart plugs installed
- 1,439 (56%) installations do not have smart plugs installed

In order to meet the 80% threshold as required by the SDRC, the installation figure required is 2,200 meaning the project at the time of writing this document is currently 352 installations above this threshold.

Of the 2,552 installs, the following can also be observed:

- 2,374 (93%) of installed gateways are online and communicating
- 1,468 (58%) of installed clamps are online and communicating

This report also considers non communicative elements experienced with the monitoring equipment thus far. These elements are undergoing investigation to produce solutions which can be applied to increase the success of the installation and data capture process.

2. Introduction

2.1 Purpose

The purpose of this report is to offer evidence of the installed equipment to date, the numbers of equipment from which data is able to be collected and sample data collected by the equipment. This report also presents analysis regarding any non communicative equipment.

2.2 Aims and Objectives

This report aims to present a system data level view of the hardware ecosystem, highlighting the quantity of equipment installed and a detailed status analysis of the individual solution components. By thoroughly analysing the data contained within the various systems used by the project a detailed view can be presented not only allowing a view of the current landscape but suggestions on how this can be shaped moving forward.

2.3 Project Background

The SAVE project is a Low Carbon Network (LCN) Fund project which is being led by Southern Electric Power Distribution (SEPD) in partnership with DNV-GL, Maingate Enterprise Solutions, University of Southampton and Neighbourhood Economics alongside EA Technology and BMG Research.

The project aims to trial and establish to what extent energy efficiency measures can be considered as a cost effective, predictable and sustainable tool for managing peak and overall demand as an alternative to network reinforcement. The project targets domestic customers only, and the measures to be trialled will include deploying technology, offering a commercial incentive and taking an innovative approach to customer engagement.

On completion of the project other Distributed Network Operators (DNOs) will have a suite of tools to assess a particular network's suitability for demand reduction through energy efficiency measures and to allow informed investment choices to be made between using customer engagement and energy efficiency measures as opposed to traditional technology based measures and 'smart' solutions. A number of real-world customer field trials will be completed as part of the SAVE project to assess the effectiveness of four energy efficiency interventions in reducing and/or time-shifting demand for electricity in a representative sample of the household population of the Solent region. The four intervention methods are:

- LED installation;
- Data-informed engagement campaign;
- DNO price signals direct to customers plus data-informed engagement; and
- Community coaching.

3. Rollout Process

3.1 Equipment

Sensors – The two types of sensor being used by the project are the energy meter (clamp) and smart switch (plug), which are both manufactured by Aeon labs. Both sensors are non invasive and do not require any specialist installation equipment, or power outage for the participant. This means that as well as being easy to install, they can be removed easily once the project has completed.

The energy meter is a battery powered clamp which records consumption by clamping on to the live feed to the household and is capable of transmitting data via the z-wave protocol. The clamp records accumulated consumption for the entire household which is then transmitted to the main systems via the gateway. For a detailed description of the Aeon smart energy meter please refer to the specification from Aeon Labs which can be found in Appendix A.

The smart switch is a pass through plug which is able to record the consumption of devices attached to it. Again, this device is able to communicate via the z-wave protocol. As with the energy meter, the smart switch records accumulated consumption for any device which it is connected to, this data is then transmitted back to the main systems via the gateway. For a detailed description of the Aeon smart switch please refer to the specification from Aeon Labs which can be found in Appendix A.

Gateway – The solution utilises a communications gateway which is manufactured by Gemalto. The gateway acts as the central data collection point for the household system and is able to communicate with not only the devices which it has been paired with, but the Maingate mVio system which acts as the main data repository for the project. The gateway communicates with sensors using the z-wave protocol and is able to send data back to the mVio system using either the householders ADSL connection or via the mobile network (using a SIM card). The SAVE project utilises both ADSL and SIM solutions for sending data back to the mVio system.

mVio – The mVio system acts as the main data repository for the project, collates all data sent back from sensors. Data within the mVio system is then made available for the project via standard reports, a data warehouse or daily bulk file.

3.2 Data

The actual data for the project contains many elements, however the main two elements of interest to the project with regard to data are as follows:

- kWh – The devices (both clamps and smart plugs) accumulate kWh consumed by the household. This data is collected and reported to the project as half hourly interval data.
- SE4 number – The SE4 number is a unique identifier used throughout the project to refer to an individual household without storing personal data unnecessarily. Within the mVio system the SE4 number is used to link a particular set of equipment (device and consumption data) to an individual household, and allow this to be passed to downstream systems whilst still maintaining data integrity. Throughout the duration of the project only BMG Field Research databases will store personal data for households with the link between the research data and personal data being the SE4 number. Access to personal household data held within BMG's systems will be granted on a 'need to' basis for example when required for support purposes in accordance with the data protection strategy.

3.3 Installation Process

Customer recruitment and installation of monitoring equipment for the SAVE project is being conducted by BMG Field Research. The equipment is packaged as kits for BMG to use depending upon participant type. All kits include a clamp and a gateway with 50% also containing three smart plugs as only two of the four participant groups will require smart plugs to be fitted. The kits are made up of devices straight from the manufacturer, and therefore require some steps before they are able to be deployed which is done in two stages, offsite and onsite.

In order to support the rollout process, and to ensure as smooth and efficient rollout as possible an initial training session was conducted by Maingate for selected BMG staff. This session was designed as a 'train the trainer' session as BMG would be further recruiting during the rollout phase, so would be providing further in house training as the project progressed. As well as the initial training session Maingate will be providing first line support throughout the duration of the project. Initially this is to assist the installers during the rollout process, and then to assist participants with any queries or issues during post rollout and trial stages of the project.

Offsite the installers are required to update the gateways to the latest firmware version and to initially pair the clamp for use during installation. This serves two purposes, firstly it reduces the time spent in a participant's home and secondly it allows all equipment to be tested off site ensuring a smooth installation. Updating the firmware of the gateway is a simple process in that the gateway will begin the update process itself once connected to the internet via a suitable communications medium (ADSL or SIM card inserted into the device). When an active connection to the internet has been recognised the gateway will connect to the Maingate central server and begin the download of the latest firmware. Once the firmware has been downloaded, the gateway will begin automatically updating itself. This can be observed by the various status lights on the gateway flashing and the gateway rebooting. Upon completion of the download and update process, the status lights will remain lit indicating that the gateway is once again connected to the internet and the Maingate servers, and is now ready for the next stage of the process, the pairing of the clamp to the gateway.

As the devices being used by the project communicate using the z-wave protocol, for security purposes all devices must be paired to the gateway before they can begin communicating. The pairing process is the same for all devices and comprises of a combination of web pages and actions. The first step in the pairing process is for the installer to log on to the gateway using a dedicated web page accessed via the internet using their handheld tablet. When the installer lands on the gateway administration page they are offered several options, one of which is to pair a device. When this is clicked the pairing mode is activated and the gateway is available to pair. In order to pair a device, for example a clamp, a button is pressed on the clamp which places the clamp in to pairing mode. The devices then complete the pairing process and confirmation is received on screen. During the pairing procedure the ‘device type’ is stored based on an installer completed field, while this is not completely necessary for the clamps it is used to record the device a smart plug is associated with at the smart plug installation stage detailed below.

Once a household agrees to participate in the trial BMG will begin the installation process which involves installing the gateway which has already been updated and paired with the clamp offsite, and then installing the clamp on the relevant cable running from the meter. The installer then ensures that the gateway is able to communicate with the clamp by logging on to the gateway management page and viewing the details of the paired clamp which will now display clamp readings when the gateway and clamp are able to communicate. Should the gateway not be able to communicate with the clamp an error will be shown on screen that the installer can use to diagnose any problem, for example the range between the devices is too great.

To install the smart plugs the installer will pair each device in turn and record the device which the plug is connected to. As a final check all devices are checked to ensure they are able to return values to the gateway and that the pairing process was a success.

When all required devices have been installed, the final stage of the installation process is to register the equipment and create an association between the devices and the unique SE4 number. This record is created via a further web page which can be accessed by the installers on-site using mobile enabled tablet computers. This stage is referred to as creating the customer record as creates a unique record for each participant. As a final check, during this stage the registration page initiates a check that ensures that not only can the newly installed gateway be contacted by the mVio system, but that the clamp associated with the install can be reached. Should any of these checks fail the process will not continue and no record will be created requiring rectification of the issue before the installation can be completed.

Once all installation steps have been completed, the installation is now visible within the mVio system and now able to associate the data received from the devices to the relevant SE4 ID and the data can then be reported to downstream systems.

3.4 Data Collection Process

The following two diagrams detail a high level overview of the data collection process from the individual devices together with a brief description of the process.

SAVE – Data Collection Flow

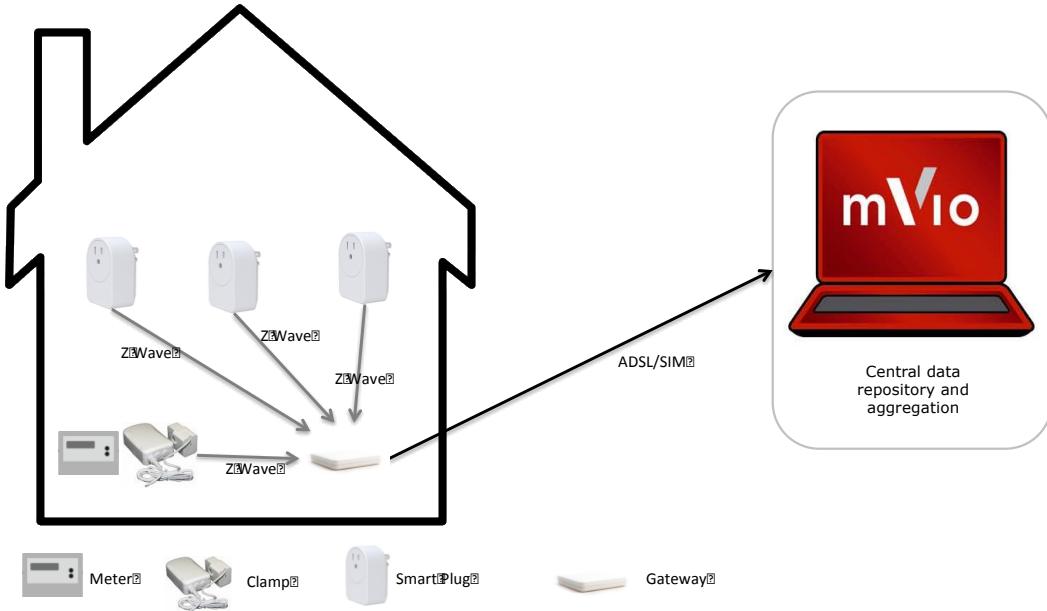

Diagram 1 – Typical installation (with smart plugs), showing data flow back to mVio via the gateway using Z-Wave and ADSL/SIM.

Once deployed the sensors continuously record consumption at set intervals and store the values within an internal memory buffer which can be configured by the project, this is currently agreed as 30 minutes allowing the greatest level of granularity without incurring large transmission and storage overheads. The 30 minute interval is also the same as the granularity of the substation monitoring data the project is receiving and replicates the data available from smart meters. In the case of the plugs, as they may not be continuously powered because of householder action switching sockets on and off when required, the plugs will not continuously record and transmit, this will only occur when powered.

At intervals during the day the gateway connects to the sensors it is paired with using the z-wave protocol and reads all stored data. This is then sent back to the central Maingate servers for storage and downstream reporting, as described below.

SAVE – Data Flow

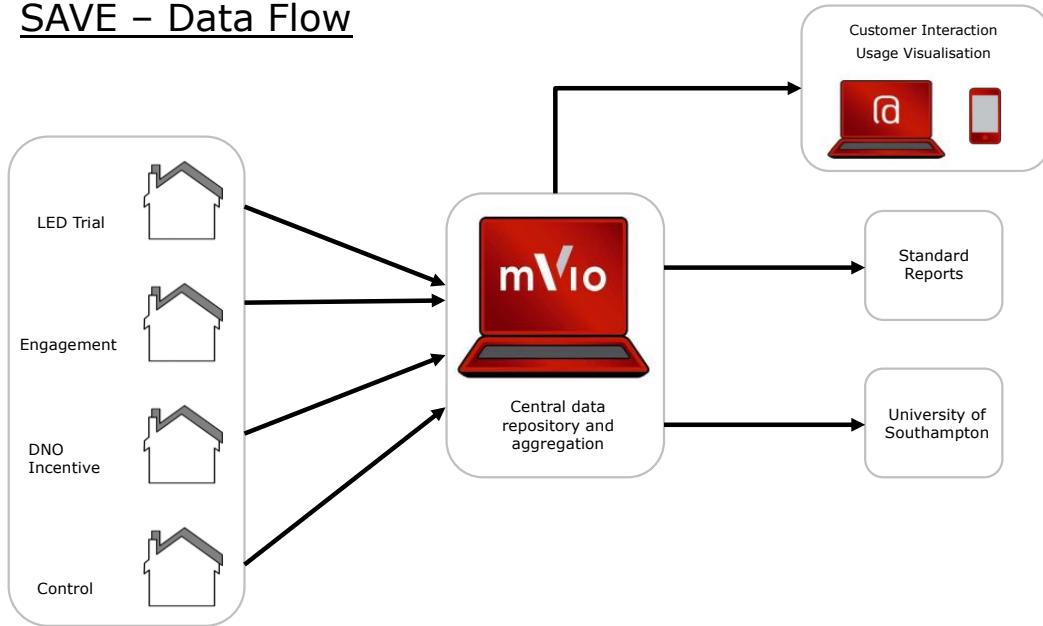

Diagram 2 – All participants sending data back to the central system for aggregation, reporting and forwarding to downstream systems.

All gateways send their respective data via a secure connection using ADSL or SIM back to the mVio system where it is collated and stored to allow downstream reporting to the wider project. Downstream reporting for the project currently comprises of standard reports and daily bulk files.

The standard report is described in much greater detail in section 3.1.2 and gives a detailed overview from a systems perspective of the installed equipment. The report gives details of equipment status such as last connection date, last value recorded by device and additional detail such as the date the equipment was installed. This report is sent to both SEPD and BMG respectively to allow equipment status to be monitored as the rollout progresses, overall installation progress and also to identify any non communicative equipment.

The University of Southampton receives a separate set of reports which are sent daily and contain the raw data from the mVio system, this represents the previous 24 hours of consumption data for all devices. As this is the raw data received from the sensors, the University are able to trend and analyse as required throughout the duration of the project. These files are sent automatically via FTP to the University from the mVio system.

4. Measurement Criteria

4.1.1 Installed Equipment Requirements

Whilst the bulk of the installation process is comprised of the physical installation, the devices and associated data will not be picked up by the mVio system until the customer record is created. For the purposes of this report, installed equipment is equipment that has been physically installed within a participant's home and where a customer record has been created by registration of the equipment. Unless the installation has been successfully completed and the record created, newly installed devices are not visible to the mVio system, and therefore data is unable to be collected.

4.1.2 Standard Reports

In order to monitor equipment installation and performance a detailed report is available within the mVio system which contains a comprehensive view of all installations registered within the system.

Below is a detailed view of the contents of the report together with descriptions of each field in order to allow understanding of the report and the information that can be derived from it:

- GWID – This is the unique ID of the gateway.
- Last Online – The last time the mVio system was able to contact the gateway.
- Firmware Version – The firmware version of the gateway.
- BMG ID – A unique ID used by BMG as an identifier for the household where the equipment is installed.
- SE4 ID – The unique identifier allowing the project to refer back to an individual household without the need to store personal information.
- Installer – The name of the installer of the equipment.
- Install Date – The date the equipment was installed.
- Clamp Last Connect – The date/time that the mVio system was last able to obtain a read from the device.
- Clamp Last Value – The last value obtained from the clamp.
- Device 1 Serial – This is the serial number of the first smart plug installed within the household (if this field is blank then no plug is installed).
- Device 1 Last Connect - The date/time that the mVio system was last able to obtain a read from the smart plug.
- Device 1 Last Value – The last value obtained from the smart plug
- Device 2 Serial – This is the serial number of the second smart plug installed within the household (if this field is blank then no plug is installed)
- Device 2 Last Connect - The date/time that the mVio system was last able to obtain a read from the smart plug
- Device 2 Last Value – The last value obtained from the smart plug.
- Device 3 Serial – This is the serial number of the third smart plug installed within the household (if this field is blank then no plug is installed).
- Device 3 Last Connect - The date/time that the mVio system was last able to obtain a read from the smart plug.
- Device 3 Last Value – The last value obtained from the smart plug.

As can be seen from the above, the report gives a comprehensive view of the latest status of an install from a system data perspective. This data has been used to form the bulk of this report as it allows a system wide view of the individual components of an installation for the whole of the project.

5. Report Analysis

This section will cover the analysis of the system data to determine the number of installed devices, also the communication status of the devices and a detailed analysis of devices no longer communicating.

5.1 Installation timeline & Numbers

After initial trial rollouts, mass rollout began in March 2015. The below graph demonstrates the rollout progress, showing total number of installed monitors against date.

As can be seen by the above graph, the rollout progress has been relatively linear since early April 2015, going from around 400 installations to over 2,500 installations. The above graph was generated using data obtained from the mVio system and uses daily installation totals based on customer account creation/device registration. The detailed data for this report can be found in Appendix B.

5.1.1 Installed Gateways

Using the report contained in Appendix C, which was obtained on 19/06/2015, the number of installations was determined by counting the number of unique gateway ID's contained within the report.

Total number of installed gateways = 2,552

When this is compared to the expected total of 2,750 = 93%

5.1.2 Installation Type Split

As there are two main types of installation with regard to equipment installed, the split can be determined relatively easily from the report by separating those with smart plugs from those without. Within the report the following split was observed:

Total Households with Smart Plugs – 1,113 = 44%

Total Households without Smart Plugs – 1,439 = 56%

5.1.3 Numbers transmitting

Using the data within the report and utilising several filters it was possible to give a detailed breakdown of the status of the components within each install with regard to online status and communicability.

Total number of installed gateways online and communicating within past 2 weeks = 2,374 = 93%
(determined by using the last connection date of the gateway)

Total number of installed clamps online and communicating within the past 2 weeks = 1,468 = 58%
(determined by using the last connection date of the clamp, last connection date on or before 04/06/15)

Total number of installed clamps online and communicating within the past 3 weeks = 1,628 = 64%
(determined by using the last connection date of the clamp, last connection date on or before 28/05/15)

5.1.4 Numbers not transmitting

If we are to further examine the clamps which are no longer communicating, and using the 2 week communication timeline we can observe the following:

Total number of clamps that have not communicated within the last 2 weeks = 1,084 = 42%

As the project moves forward it is important to understand the causes of the above figure. To do this the data within the report can be used to help identify reasons for loss of communication and in turn point towards a resolution or mitigation. An in depth examination of the available data reveals the following about the non communicative clamps:

- 175 Gateways appear offline – these are gateways with a last connection date on or before 04/06/15
- 169 Clamps appear to have never communicated - never returned a value since install, 0 value and no last communication date, these are clearly visible within the report
- 465 Clamps have only ever returned a 0 value - including the 169 above. Again, easily identifiable within the report.
- 75 Clamps appear to have stopped communicating on the day of install – these are identifiable within the report as clamps where the last communication date is the same as the install date.
- A further 100 Clamps appear to have stopped communicating within 2 days of install – As above, these are clamps where the last communication date is within 2 days of the install date.

5.1.5 Possible Causes

The Project Direction planned for installation to take place in advance of live trial periods allowing for six months of base data to be collected for individual project participants. This period will additionally allow the Project to investigate and rectify any equipment not providing data or those devices which may need reconfiguration allowing improved data capture. As previously advised these investigations have already commenced with initial steps outlined below;

Whilst it is impossible to positively identify the cause of any loss of communication without examining each device individually, it is possible to speculate as the likely cause based on the information in the report, the equipment and the installation process.

A gateway being offline means that the gateway is no longer in contact with the mVio servers. As there are a limited number of actions that could cause this, main causes for would be either a loss of communication (no ADSL or mobile signal for SIM), or the gateway has been unplugged from the power supply.

Clamps appearing to have never communicated could be caused by several issues, however the most likely are due to either an installation issue such as an incorrect pairing or placing the clamp out of range of the gateway immediately upon installation. Although at this stage neither theory can be verified remotely and would require a site visit.

As with clamps that have never communicated, clamps that appear to have only sent a 0 value would indicate an issue upon installation, such as a pairing issue as these clamps have sent values to the system but all are zero. Another possible cause, although unlikely given the extensive training the installers receive is that the clamps could have been connected to the incorrect wire and are not reading any current. One further cause which would need to be eliminated is the potential for hardware issues to allow clamps to pair as expected but then never return a value. Although unlikely, this does need to be ruled out as a possibility.

Clamps losing connection either immediately after install or shortly after would indicate a change in environmental factors around the installation. As these installations were proven to be functional (they have sent results), they suddenly stopped sending results, which would indicate something had changed. From experience of site visits we know that post installation householders are likely to move gateway positions or place obstructions between the clamp and gateway causing a loss of signal. Although not a definitive conclusion, it is the most likely cause in the majority of cases.

For any other clamps that appear to have experienced communications failure we have been unable to identify a pattern or common cause. Potential causes which must be eliminated at the earliest opportunity are a change in the installed environment, interference with the installation and technical issues with the clamps. These will be investigated to ensure there is no underlying issue which cannot be addressed by training of installers or education of participants.

The exact steps for a more detailed investigation into non communicative equipment are yet to be determined and agreed by the project but are likely to include the following steps;

Initially it would be prudent to attempt to contact the participating household by phone to enquire around any environmental changes within the home such as a broadband router being moved or an obstruction being placed between the router and sensor. Whilst this may or may not yield a large scale change in the number of non communicative equipment, it is a natural first step and allows wherever possible initial diagnosis steps to be performed, or even rectification steps such as re-pairing equipment should this be an easy option and within the scope of the householders skills.

As a second stage, and should the initial call to the household prove unsuccessful then the next stage could possibly include a site visit to attempt to troubleshoot and rectify any issue. During this stage an installer would visit a participants home and run investigate the installation to determine the cause of the loss of communication. A site visit would also enable additional diagnostics and analysis to be conducted to help identify any patterns which may help the resolution process in the future.

It is envisaged that the investigation stage will be iterative in that as the learnings from any site visits are fed back, the process will be refined and revised in order to either make more distance resolutions possible, or site visits more efficient and less intrusive. As the site visits progress it is also envisaged that the observations combined with available data can allow any patterns to be identified as to the cause of any communications failures.

As the data readily demonstrates the gateways appear to be connecting as planned with 93% being online, and the same can be observed with the smart plugs although the figure is slightly lower due to the expected intermittent use of plug sockets. The main area where connectivity appears to be at a lower level is with the clamps. Several reasons have been put forward, and although they will require detailed investigation, they should for obvious reasons be the focus of any investigation as the project progresses in order to not only ensure that future installations are successful but any non communicative install is brought back online.

6. Interval Data

The main focus of the data output by the sensors is the half hourly interval data which will be collected centrally and sent to the University of Southampton to allow analysis of trial success. As well as a daily output file being sent, the same data will be available to the University and the wider project if required via the data warehouse.

The aim of the monitoring is to achieve representative data for each participant which follows and shows a standard spread of consumption as can be seen below which is a sample from one of the devices.

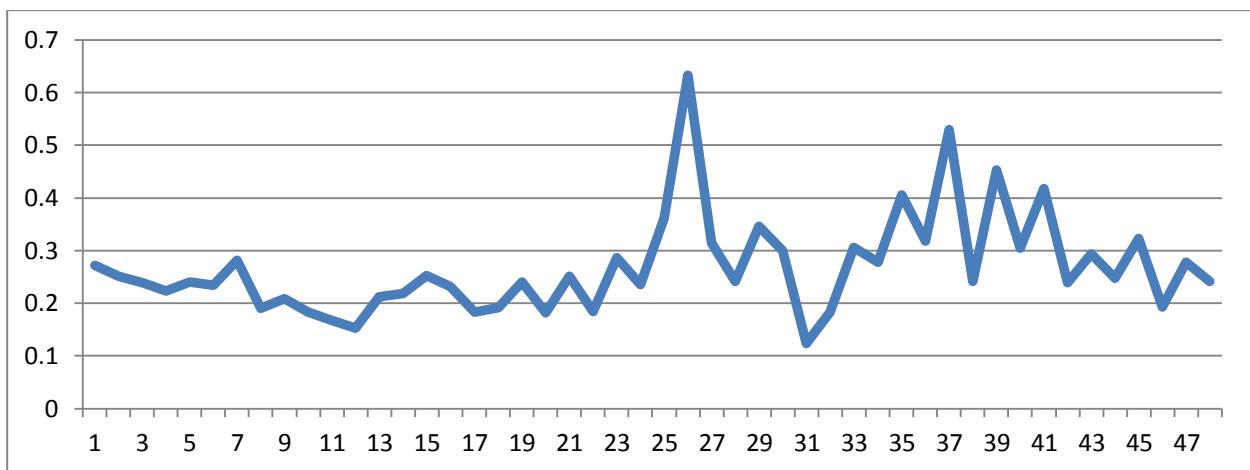

Figure2 – Graph showing a sample 24 hour period for device serial number 358173051405960 (00:00hrs – 23:30hrs)

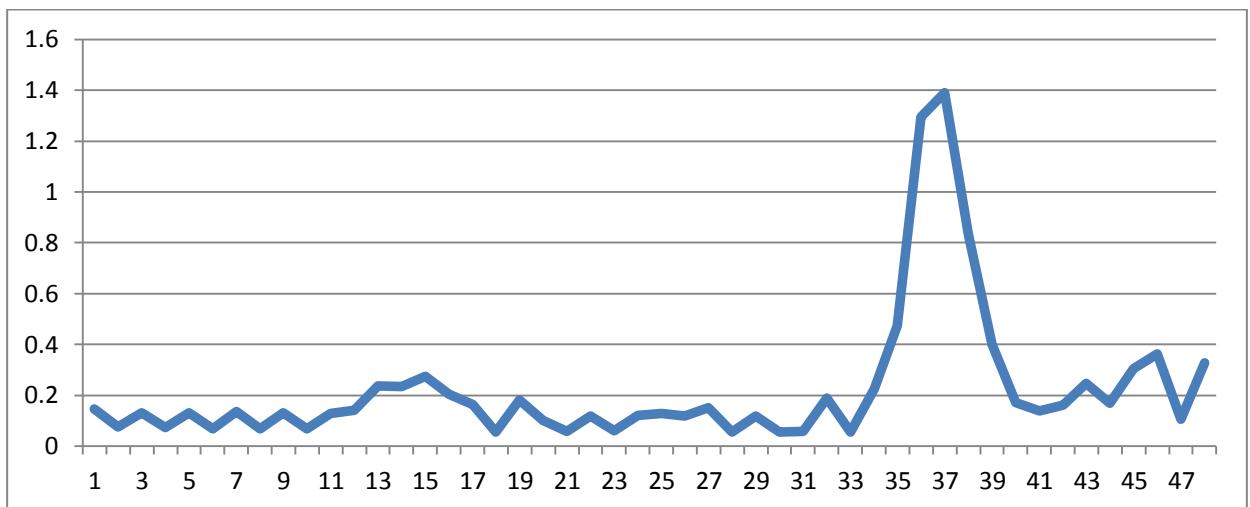

Figure3 – Graph showing a sample 24 hour period for device serial number 358173051418591 (00:00hrs – 23:30hrs)

Whilst the clamp data is expected to follow a standard profile, the data from the smart plugs is not expected to. This data will merely represent the expected profile for whichever device the plug is attached to, which is recorded by BMG at the time of install and stored within the mVio system. Although there is no method to stop the participant from moving the plug to a different device during the project BMG request at the time of install that this does not happen if possible. If a device move is required, BMG request the participant to notify the project of the move to allow records to be updated.

7. Exceptions

7.1 Data Exceptions

During the lifecycle of the project there are certain types of data exception that are likely to be experienced. These are often the result of external factors and beyond the control of the project, resulting in difficulty in data collection and transmission back to the central systems. Gaps in the interval data are likely to be experienced where data could not be collected or data could not be transmitted.

7.1.1 Causes

The main causes of any data gaps are likely to be attributable to the following:

- Lack of data – This is where the sensor hasn't collected any data. This is not expected to be the case for the clamps, however it is entirely possible that a householder could power off a smart plug at the socket causing the device to not collect data or send it.
- Lack of communication – This is where a sensor is able to collect data, but the gateway is unable to send the data back to mVio. The most likely cause of this situation is a powered down gateway or a lack of ADSL/mobile signal.

A highly likely cause of the above situations is a householder who is going away on holiday and switches off all mains powered devices. This would result in a gap in data where no reads at all are available for the participant until they return and power items up again. This is also the case for shorter gaps where the householder switches the devices off overnight. There are other causes which cannot be ruled out until detailed investigation has taken place. For instance data gaps could also be caused by a faulty broadband connection, faulty equipment or indeed householder action such as moving devices or disconnecting equipment.

7.1.2 Actions

As the project is expecting data exceptions during the lifetime of the project, various solutions have been put in place to minimise any risk associated with this.

- Firstly, the devices have memory buffers which ensure that any short term communication issue does not become a problem. Should a gateway not be able to collect data from a sensor, the sensor will be able to buffer any reads until the gateway is once again online. In the event of a longer term loss of communication the device buffer will 'roll' ensuring the latest reads are maintained.
- Secondly, the gateway itself has a buffer meaning that any short term communications issues do not become a problem.

- Lastly, should any gaps be present in the data within the mVio system, the system is able to smooth them out by using accumulation feature of the devices. The system is able to take a before and after value and then using logic is able to backfill any reads based on the difference between reads and the time between gaps. While the system is able to do this, the project as a whole will determine whether this is required or not.

The above will help mitigate any gaps in data but unfortunately cannot completely stop them. One of the best ways we will be able to minimise any risk to the project is to educate the household to not switch the gateway or plugs off when they are not needed. Although this has been done during the installation phase, continuous reminders or additional points may be required based on observations from available data or any investigative actions.

8. Summary

The contents of this report give a detailed overview of the current status of installations from a system data perspective. It allows not only the current status to be outlined, but the journey to that status, and also allows learning to be applied as the project moves forward.

The contents of this report indicate that the majority of the equipment has been successfully installed, providing the Project with usable data from 93% of installed gateways in compliance with SDRC 6 requirements. The report also provides an overview of equipment not operating as expected, investigatory steps being undertaken and actions which will be taken during the next phase of the Project to ensure all deployed equipment are successfully providing data.

With regard to total installation figures, the threshold for installations for this report was 80%, or 2,200 of the 2,750 total when using the factorial approach. As of 19.06.2015, 2,552 installations have been completed meaning that we are 352 installs above the required threshold.

The report also highlights the need for detailed investigation as to the cause of any communications failures to eliminate the possibility that they could be due to a hardware issue, and to allow accurate diagnosis. Any additional learning from site visits can then be fed back to the installation process as either training or indeed as a householder education point.

As the project moves forward the data provided by the system report (demonstrated within appendix C) will prove more valuable as it provides a real-time view of a participants demand but additionally allowing the monitoring and mapping of trends displayed by any components, which can then be fed back in to the project and acted on if necessary.

HOME ENERGY METER

Z-Wave Whole Home Energy Meter

<http://aeot.ec/hem>

1st Edition

The 1st edition of the Aeotec by Aeon Labs Home Energy Meter is a low-cost energy meter for the entire home. It can wirelessly report immediate wattage and kWh usage to central Z-Wave control point gateways and can be easily and safely installed by licensed professionals.

Current transformer clamps fasten around the AC Mains to detect energy usage for the entire house. The main body is anchored using a back mount and opens easily for battery replacement every 6 months (4 AA). Operating via battery power, readings can be taken at a maximum resolution of every 4 minutes.

Alternatively the Aeotec by Aeon Labs Home Energy Meter can be powered via DC (USB port); it does not require batteries when using the DC to draw power. Operating via DC power, readings can be taken at a maximum resolution of every 1 second.

The main body is International Protection Code rated IP43 to be weatherized for outdoor conditions; it can operate in most weather conditions. This provides for better radio range by bringing the antenna outside of most metallic current breaker boxes.

AEON LABS

AEON LABS SMART SWITCH

Z-Wave Appliance Module with Energy Metering Capabilities

2nd Edition

The 2nd edition of Aeon Labs' Smart Switch is a low-cost Z-Wave appliance switch which can report immediate wattage consumption or kWh energy usage over a period of time. It can also be controlled by other Z-Wave devices to turn on/off to save electricity when appropriate.

With an unobtrusive small form factor, the Aeon Labs Smart Switch has been designed to minimize the potential of it blocking other power outlets.

Product highlights

- Plug-in on/off appliance control with energy monitoring.
- Second generation: Completely redesigned. New body, 50% smaller.
- Supports Z-Wave Explorer Frames.
- Repeats Z-Wave messages.
- Optimized antenna range: 100+ feet tested.
- Certified/Available for USA, EU and Australian markets (UL, FCC, CE, C-TICK, ROHS)

Technical specifications

- Powered by 90-260VAC, 50/60Hz.
